POETRY.

From the N. Y. Mirror. THREE STAGES OF LOVE.

There is a love in early life Which shuns parade and worldly strife, In humble cot, a happy home, In humble cot, a happy home.

There is a love of older growth, Less dazzling than the love of youth, Where gentle looks and anxious care, Aspire, the husband's toil to share.

There is a love in later stage, When pain and sickness grow on age, When he, so active once, and gay, Perceives approach his closing day.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Golden Marriage.—If you wish to learn the true value of marriage, if you wish to see what this union may be for two human hearts for life, then observe not the wedding-lanes in their honeymoon, nor by the cradle of their first child, nor a time when novelty and hope yet throw a morning glory over the young and newborn world of home.

The Death-Bell.—How sad and lonely the couch where the emaciated form is stretched, unheeded by the dawning of the eternal day! Over the poor, unhappy, no cherub wings are hovering. In vain are the charms of friendship extended, and the bosom of love opened.

D. D. conferred on a Colored Clergyman.—The New Haven Courier, in an issue of the 20th inst., contains an account of a young man, the Surrey University, in England, who has conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. John W. C. Peck.

INDEPENDENCE OF THE FARMER.

Of all the conditions of men; and I have mingled with every variety; I believe in truth that none is so independent as that of an industrious, frugal and sober farmer; none affords more the means of contentment and substantial enjoyment; none, where the education has not been neglected, presents better opportunities for moral and intellectual improvement.

A Paragraph for Children.

Any student who does not give a few lines space to something peculiarly for the children? Most assuredly we see no reason against it. A little boy, eight or nine years old, was walking along Grand street the other day, on an errand for his parents. Near at hand, under the shade of an awning, was an apple stand, kept by a poor woman, and covered with delicious pears, blackberries and apples.

AN INCIDENT OF THE REVOLUTION.

In the summer of 1779, during one of the darkest periods of the Revolutionary struggle, in the then small village of S— (though it now bears a more dignified title), in this State, lived Judge V., one of the finest and truest patriots who in the limits of the "Old Thirteen," and deep in the confidence of Washington.

STRANGE MISTAKE.

A patient having been recommended by his physician to drink the Suion (Spa) water, was asked on the next visit, "how he found himself." "Why, doctor," said he, "I can't say that I feel much better, although I have followed your advice, but it is so black."

A Lobster Story.

We have fish stories, snake stories, bear stories, all sorts of stories, and now, for a change, we suppose, have a lobster story. A man had just received a large lot of lobsters, fresh and lively, when a boy stood looking at the critters, accompanied by his dog. "Suppose you put your dog's tail between the lobster's claw," said the man; "agreed," says the boy.

There was a dog, and his name was Buff.

He was educated in a Quaker family, and partook largely of their quiet and peace loving spirit. Like them he was of few words. For a companion he had a cat brought up under the same advantages, but who had failed to imbibed the non-resistant principles of her teacher.

Moral: Never ride a free horse to death, nor impose upon a man to-day, because he did not resent an injury yesterday.

THE AMERICAN FLAG IN CHINA.

A writer to the Boston Courier, who takes the signature of Choong Kwah, says: When the thirteen stars and stripes first appeared at Canton, much curiosity was excited among the people.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE CHAS. JAMES FOX.

THE CHARACTER OF THE IRISH PEOPLE.—The following sentiments, uttered many years ago by the illustrious Fox, are being collected, and we are happy to perceive, in the two houses of the British Parliament, and by many of the members of both political parties: "I love the Irish Nation," (said Mr. Fox) "I know a good deal of that people. I know much of Ireland from having seen it. I know more from private friendships with individuals. The Irish may have their faults like others. They may have a quick feeling of injury, and not be very patient under it; but, I do affirm, in all their characteristics, there is not one feature more predominant in every class of the country, from the highest to the lowest order, than gratitude for benefits, and sensibility to kindness. Change your system towards that country, and you will find them another sort of men. Let impartiality, justice, and clemency, take place of prejudice, oppression and vengeance, and you will not want the aid of martial law, or the terror of military execution."

Beck's review of the "The body of the dead Tory was taken up and buried by the Saxons of the church, as he had no relations in the country."

THE OCCURRENCE OF THE SUMMER.

After the absence of two hours or thereabouts, the negroes returned, having succeeded in capturing Finley, and one of the strangers, who were that night confined, and the next morning, at the earnest solicitation of Judge V., liberated on promise of mending their lives.

THE MUSIC OF THE SPHERES.

A recent meeting of the French Academy of Sciences at Paris, communicated some particulars of the fall of an aerolith, which happened near Utrecht, at about eight o'clock on the evening of June 2. A detonation was heard to a distance of twenty or twenty-five kilometers (12 or 15 miles), like that of three or four discharges of cannon, followed by a noise, which was compared by the greater part of the persons who heard it to military music, or the Abolition Harp.

A FRIGHTFUL SCENE.

The steamer Georgia, Capt. Coffey, left Spear's wharf last evening on a moonlight excursion down the Bay, projected by the Independent Blues, a military company of this city. The number of persons on board was probably not much less than six or eight hundred, about one-half of whom were ladies. Most of the passengers had been taken on the upper deck. Soon after the boat had left the wharf, the excessive weight above caused her to rock and overbalance. At this many became alarmed, and thinking to right her again they changed positions in a body to the other side. This made the matter worse, and the lurching became awfully frightful, so that the boat seemed on the eve of capsizing.

AN EXCITING STORY.

The following fact will show the different dangers to which solitary travellers are sometimes exposed. A man belonging to Mr. Salomon's congregation, at Bethany, returning homewards from a visit to his friends, took a circuitous course in order to pass a small fountain or rather pond, where he hoped to find an antelope to carry home to his family.

The day passed, and the night also, but the lion never moved from the spot: the sun rose again, and its intense heat soon rendered him past feeling. At noon the lion rose and walked to the water, a few yards distant, looking behind as it went, lest the man should move, and seeing him stretch out the arm to take his gun turned in a rage, and was on the point of springing upon him. The animal went to the water, drank, and returning lay down at the edge of the rock.

Another night passed, the man dejectedly said he knew not whether his eyes were open, for he always saw the lion at his feet. Next day, in the forenoon, the animal went again to the water, and while there he listened to some noise, apparently from an opposite quarter, and disappeared in the bushes. The man now made another effort, and raised his gun, but on attempting to fire, he fell, his ankles being without power. With his gun in his hand, he crept towards the water, and drank, but looking at his feet, he saw, as he expressed it, his "toes roared," and the skin torn off with the claws. There he sat a few moments, expecting the lion's return when he was resolved to send the contents of the gun through his head, but as it did not appear, lying in his back, the poor man made the best of his way with his hands and knees to the nearest path, hoping some solitary individual might pass. He could go no farther, when providentially a person came up who took him to a place of safety, from whence he obtained help, though he lost his toes and was a cripple for life.

GOOD BREEDING.

The following anecdote is related by Mr. Walker in his amusing and instructive publication, "The Original," as affording a fine instance of the value of good breeding or politeness, even in circumstances where it could not be expected to produce any personal advantage. An Englishman making the grand tour, towards the middle of the last century, when travellers were more objects of attention than at present, on arriving at Turin, enquired out to see the place. He happened to enter a regiment of infantry, returning from parade, and taking a position to see it pass, a young captain, evidently desirous to make a display before the stranger, in crossing one of the numerous water-courses with which this city is intersected, missed his footing, and in trying to save himself, lost his hat. The exhibition was truly unfortunate: the spectators laughed, and looked at the Englishman, expecting him to laugh too. On the contrary, he not only retained his composure, but promptly advanced to where his hat had rolled, and taking it up, presented it, with unfeigned kindness, to its confused owner. The officer received it with a blush of surprise and gratitude, and hurried to rejoin his company. There was a murmur of applause, and the stranger passed on.

IMPROVEMENT IN WATER WHEELS.

THE subscriber takes pleasure in informing the owners of Mills and other machinery, that he has made an important improvement in the construction of Water wheels, which, with the found far superior to any Water wheel now in use, for the following reasons:

1st. They will do the same work with one-third less water than any underfoot or re vetion wheel. 2. They are much more simple and less expensive to build. 3d. They are much more durable, being cast iron wheels. And 4th, they are not obstructed by ice, nor impeded by back-water. I speak with confidence concerning these Wheels. I have two of them in operation in my Mill, which have run about fifteen months, and during which time they have performed commendation here given them. These wheels run horizontally under water, and will answer to any fall from 3 feet to 15 feet, and will answer for saw-mills, or any other machinery requiring water power, and can be applied to gears or shafts. I prefer the latter. I have three pairs of stones in my Mill, all running by straps—I have not a cog-wheel in the Mill. We find the straps to answer well, if properly constructed; they are infinitely cheaper, and they render the whole plan so very simple, that in fact there seems to be nothing to wear out or rot. The millwright work to one of these wheels, and all necessary gearing to run one pair of stones, can be made, and the cast wheel furnished and put up, for about fifty or fifty-five dollars; boarding found, and which in fact will answer to run two pairs of stones alternately. I think of this all that are concerned. A cast water-wheel, that may last for ages, and all the gearing necessary, for about $50! The cast water-wheel used in the Western country cost $100 at the turn of the century, and are not half so good an article. All water wheels that are put up under my direction, will be warranted to perform the work. I have now had a fair trial of them through all seasons, and am fully satisfied that the wheels will answer to every particular.

Having obtained a Patent Right for the above improvement, I am now prepared to sell the right and privilege of using this plan of Water wheels to all who may be disposed to buy it.

I am desirous of appointing Agents in different sections of the country, to build wheels on the above plan, and to sell the right of using them. All letters addressed to me in Adams county, Penn., Gettysburg, Post-office, post paid, will be punctually answered.

SAMUEL DIEHL.
